CHAMPAGNE AND SPARKLING WINE

Champagne is the most northerly of the great wine growing regions of France and its situation, together with the unique chalky soil in which the vines grow, combine to give the quality that makes champagne the world's supreme sparkling wine. No other drink has developed such a hedonistic image as champagne. Winners, lovers and revellers of all kinds have been drenching themselves in it throughout the last century.

Non - Vintage

Non vintage champagne are wines based around the current harvest, with reserve wines added to maintain individual House styles. The addition of reserve wines provides a certain level of complexity and degree of instant maturity. The Greatest 'prestige cuvee' can improve for as long as great vintage Champagnes.

193	Prosecco, Borgo Col Alto Rosé, Italy NV		£37.00

Rosé Champagne

Champagne rose is produced by either adding a little red wine to the white, or by allowing the macerated skins of black grapes to come in contact with the wine. Rose tends to have less acidity than white Champagnes, and are noted for their delicate, floral, fruity style.

Bin		Glass 125ml	Bottle 75cl
171	Laurent Perrier Rosé NV		£100.00

Port

Port wines derives its name from the the city of Porto located in the Douro Valley in northern Portugal. Port wines are usually made from combination of up to five different grape varieties, Touriga Nacional, Tinto Cao, Tina Barroca, Tinta Rozi, and Touriga Fanacesas. It tends to have a much richer, sweeter and heavier flavour than other wines.
